PLAINTIFFS' RESPONSE TO UNITED STATES' NOTICE OF OBJECTIONS TO SPECIAL MASTER REPORT

Judge: Hon. Yvonne Gonzalez Rogers

Trial Date: None Set

INTRODUCTION

Defendants’ objections to the Special Master’s Report fail for three independent reasons. First, their arguments that the Special Master’s Report is invalid under Rule 53 and the PLRA overread the applicable law and misconstrue the history of this case. Second, the evidence submitted by Defendants in support of their factual challenges is invalid and self-serving; it must be struck from the record. Third, even if Defendants’ evidentiary submissions were proper, they would still be incorrect or irrelevant to the Special Master’s actual findings, and they should not sway this Court from adopting the Report properly produced by a well-appointed neutral. For these reasons, and because the Special Master’s Report is vital well-informed evidence of the conditions facing the certified class members, this Court should overrule Defendants objection and adopt the Special Master’s Report. Alternatively, the Court can address Defendants’ objections at the upcoming evidentiary hearings which the Court has tentatively scheduled for September 2024.

I. DEFENDANTS’ OBJECTIONS TO THE SPECIAL MASTER’S REPORT ARE UNAVAILING.

Defendants launch a confused series of procedural and substantive assaults on the validity of Special Master Still’s Report. None are availing. Defendants assert that the Special Master had no authority to issue her report under Rule 53 and that the Report does not comport with the requirements of the PLRA.

Special Masters, once duly appointed, have broad and flexible powers unless they are limited by the appointing Court’s orders. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(c) (stating that unless directed otherwise by the court an appointed master has the authority to regulate all proceedings, take all appropriate measures to perform assigned duties fairly and effectively, and compel, take and record evidence if conducting hearings). In appointing Special Master Still this Court ordered that “Ms. Still and her team shall have full access to FCI Dublin, all its records, and all physical facilities as necessary to provide the Court with the information necessary to address the issues raised in the Order, both in terms of assessment and implementation.” ECF 248 at 2 (only placing a limit on her ability to engage in ex parte communications with the attorneys of the parties and to conduct hearings herself, noting that as of April 5 there was not yet “a need to make findings of 1 fact”). The Order also explicitly allowed the parties to object within five business days of the 2 order, and Defendants did not object. 248 at 2:14-15.

3 Despite this, Defendants argue that Special Master Still’s powers are so constrained that 4 she is not even allowed to issue a report. This argument fails on the facts and the law. The Report
5 is nothing if not “information necessary to address the issues raised in the Order” and includes 6 both assessment and implementation recommendations as contemplated by the Court. The Court’s 7 Order, and the Report, therefore comply with the scope limitations of Rule 53(b). Fed. R. Civ. P.
8 53(b). Rule 53(e) further provides that “[a] master must report to the court as required by the 9 appointing order. The master must file the report and promptly serve a copy on each party, unless 10 the court orders otherwise.” Id. 53(e). That is, again, exactly what Special Master Still’s Report 11 does: it reports to the Court as guided by the appointing order and was served on the parties.

12 To the extent further guidance was necessary as to the form of that information, the Court 13 provided it. The Court repeatedly discussed the activities of the Special Master, including that the 14 Special Master would be drafting a report in the frequent hearings conducted in the weeks 15 following the announced closure of Dublin. See e.g. ECF 260. Those hearings also provided 16 ample opportunities for the parties to be heard, as they often were, on a range of subjects.

17 Instead of focusing on the Order appointing Special Master Still, Defendants focus on this 18 Court’s May 20, 2024 Order, ECF 308, and challenge its propriety. See Def. Obj. at 3. But this is 19 a red herring. The May 20 Order simply stated what the parties had well understood: that a report 20 was being prepared. ECF 308 at 2. There is no need to analyze this Order under Rule 53(b) as 21 Defendants suggest because this was not an order appointing the Special Master in the first 22 instance and did not otherwise modify the duties of the Special Master beyond permitting the 23 parties to depose her in regard to her report, which did not modify her duties. This Court’s order 24 appointing the Special Master, ECF 248, allowed for the production of a report well before that, 25 and the court affirmed that authority in subsequent hearings. Beyond that, the May 20 Order 26 outlined the new role the Special Master would take on following the issuance of the report. It 27 appointed her as Court Monitor, which is not subject to the PLRA, because the PLRA does not 28 govern the appointment of Court Monitors as they do not conduct quasi-judicial functions. See

1 Dkt. 338 at 16:4-27.

2       Regardless, to the extent the May 20 Order is subject to analysis under Rule 53, it is 53(f) 3 not (b) that applies. 53(f)(1) provides, “[i]n acting on a master’s order, report, or 4 recommendations, the court must give the parties notice and an opportunity to be heard; may 5 receive evidence; and may adopt or affirm, modify, wholly or partly reject or reverse, or resubmit
6 to the master with instructions.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(f)(1). The Court’s orders regarding the report 7 comply with Rule 53(f). Notice of the Report was amply given, both parties were provided with 8 the Report, Defendants had the opportunity to object, and the Court has scheduled evidentiary 9 hearings regarding the content of the Report.

10       Even if Defendants were correct in their characterization of this Court’s Orders regarding 11 the Special Master, nothing in Rule 53 or any of the case law cited by Defendants states that a 12 failure to identify certain categories of material for record preservation invalidates the entirety of a 13 Special Masters Report. Defendants cite to the advisory committee notes to Rule 53 and two cases 14 in support of their position regarding the special master’s record. None of these even support 15 Defendants’ claim that a special master must file a complete record in all cases. The advisory 16 committee’s notes to Rule 53 expressly contemplate circumstances where the master need not file 17 materials publicly and can instead provide the relevant materials only to the court, noting 18 “[c]onfidentiality is important with respect to many materials that may properly be considered by a 19 master.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 53 advisory committee notes. Defendants next cite La Quinta Worldwide
20 LLC v. Q.R.T.M., S.A. de C.V., 762 F.3d 867, 879 (9th Cir. 2014), Defs’ Obj. at 3, but that case has 21 no bearing on special masters, as no special master was contemplated or appointed. The quoted 22 sentence in Defendants’ brief concerned the Ninth Circuit’s standard of review when considering a 23 district court’s factual findings. See La Quinta, 762 F.3d at 879 (trademark infringement action 24 involving appeal of a permanent injunction). The Court has the authority to determine preservation 25 of materials, Fed. R. Civ. P. 53(b), and, as a practical matter the Special Master’s Report is clear 26 as to what evidence it based its findings upon. Defendants have even been granted the opportunity 27 to depose Special Master Still regarding the production of the report, and the Court has now set 28 evidentiary hearings on the matter a well. Dkt 308 (allowing for deposition); Dkt. 336 (setting

1 evidentiary hearings). Defendants' citation to Sukumar v. Direct Focus, Inc., is premature, as the 2 Court here has set evidentiary hearings, so Defendants will have an opportunity to be heard. See
 3 Defs' Obj. at 4; Sukumar v. Direct Focus, Inc., 349 F. App'x 163, 165 (9th Cir. 2009) (affirming 4 district court's appointment and findings of the special master). Defendants' objections regarding 5 record materials are even less effective because it is Defendants who provided the vast majority of 6 documentary evidence to the Special Master. Defendants are aware of precisely what they 7 provided to her and what her activities were within a facility that Defendants manage. The radical 8 remedy proposed by Defendants, wholesale rejection of the Report, is simply not justified by the 9 applicable rules.

10 Turning to the PLRA, Defendants only cursorily reference the requirements of the PLRA
 11 and entirely misunderstand the operative requirements. Defendants cite provisions of the PLRA 12 various times in the main body of their brief but provide no analysis for why these citations are 13 relevant. For example, Defendants cite 18 U.S.C. § 3626(f)(1)(A) which "provides for a 14 'disinterested and objective' special master to hold hearings and prepare proposed findings of 15 fact..." Defs Obj. at 2, 3. But that provision is irrelevant to their objections. No hearings were 16 conducted by the Special Master. To the extent Defendants are arguing that the Special Master is 17 required to conduct hearings pursuant to the PLRA, that argument is belied by the clear text which 18 states: "the court may appoint a special master who shall be disinterested and objective and who 19 will give due regard to the public safety, to conduct hearings on the record and prepare proposed 20 findings of fact." 18 U.S.C.A. § 3626. The "may" in this section indicates that a Court is not 21 bound to appoint a special master to conduct all such tasks.

22 To the extent Defendants are arguing that Special Master Still is not "disinterested and 23 objective," that contention falls flat. Defendants suggest that "rather than making objective 24 findings, the special master was given '[t]he principle goal' of 'captur[ing] and document[ing] 25 evidence of constitutionally inadequate conditions.'" Def. Obj. at 3-4 (citing Dkt. 308 at 2). Their 26 assertion is contradicted by the chronology of this case and by the complete sentence Defendants' 27 selectively quoted. In its May 20 Order, the Court stated, "The principal goal of [Special Master 28 Still's] efforts is to capture and document evidence of the constitutionally inadequate conditions at

1 FCI Dublin identified by the Court in its preliminary injunction order. (Dkt. No. 222.) As such, 2 the Court confirms that Still’s work towards these goals is encompassed with her appointment as 3 Special Master and is subject to 18 U.S.C. § 3626(f).” Dkt. 308 at 2 (emphasis added). The Court
 4 has already found constitutionally inadequate conditions. That the Special Master was appointed 5 “to provide the Court with the information necessary to address the issues raised in the Order” so 6 finding does not make the Special Master unobjective. The only case Defendants cite regarding an 7 objective special master is distinct, as it involved the appointment of a special master authorized to 8 conduct hearings. See Defs’ Obj. at 3-4; Alberti v. Klevenhagen, 660 F.Supp. 605, 611 (S.D. Tex.
 9 1987). Here, by contrast, the Court will be conducting the evidentiary hearing regarding the 10 Special Master’s Report. Special Master Still, moreover, was appointed after this Court conducted 11 a review of candidates from each side, with counsel for each side present, as required by the 12 PLRA. That process revealed Wendy Still to be the most qualified candidate of those available, 13 and Defendants did not object to her appointment on any basis. Defendants’ other citation to the 14 PLRA appears when they attempt to relitigate the issues presented in their motion to dismiss, Def.
 15 Obj, at 6., but this too is irrelevant to their objection. The status of the Special Master’s Report is 16 entirely independent of whether the ongoing injunctive relief in this matter is void or moot.

17 II. BOP’S FACTUAL OBJECTIONS TO THE SPECIAL MASTER REPORT
 18 SHOULD BE STRICKEN OR AFFORDED LITTLE WEIGHT.

19 Defendants rely entirely on unsworn narrative objections from lay declarants to refute the 20 factual allegations in the Special Master’s Report and introduce voluminous documents without 21 including declarations from the relevant individuals authenticating or establishing personal 22 knowledge of the procedures or documents referenced in the objections. The narratives contained 23 in Exhibit 1 and documents attached in support are inadmissible and should either be excluded or 24 afforded little weight in analyzing the Special Master’s report. The Court has now set evidentiary 25 hearings and ordered pre-hearing discovery as to Defendants’ objections and Defendants’ 26 evidence can be properly presented and considered as part of that process. ECF 336 at 8:3-12.

27 All of the objections contained in Exhibit 1 are based on narrative by lay witnesses. Rule 28 602 requires that a “witness may testify to a matter only if evidence is introduced sufficient to 1 support a finding that the witness has personal knowledge of the matter.” Fed. R. Evid. 602.

 2 Personal knowledge is defined as “knowledge produced by the direct involvement of the senses.”
 3 United States v. Lopez, 762 F.3d 852, 863 (9th Cir. 2014); see also Lowry v. City of San Diego, 4 858 F.3d 1248, 1256 (9th Cir. 2017) (holding that witness lacked personal knowledge of “events
 5 that she did not in fact witness or was not in a position to perceive on the night in question”). This 6 requirement is met when a “witness can demonstrate firsthand knowledge or observation.” Id. at 7 864; see also Flintkote Co. v. Gen. Acc. Assur. Co., 410 F. Supp. 2d 875, 884 (N.D. Cal. 2006); 8 Anhing Corp. v. Thuan Phong Co., No. 13-CV-05167, 2014 WL 11456533, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Oct.
 9 24, 2014). When testimony includes an out of court statement made by another person, personal 10 knowledge requires that “first, the witness who testifies must have personal knowledge of the 11 making of the out-of-court statement, and second, the person who made the out-of-court statement 12 must have had personal knowledge of the events on which he based his statement.” United States
 13 v. Owens-El, 889 F.2d 913, 915 (9th Cir. 1989). While the burden on a witness is “minimal,” 14 district courts have used this standard to exclude testimony as to events where “reasonable persons 15 could differ as to whether the witness had an adequate opportunity to observe, the witness's 16 testimony is admissible.” Strong v. Valdez Fine Foods, 724 F.3d 1042, 1045 (9th Cir. 2013) 17 (internal quotations omitted). Personal knowledge can be “acquired through [a person’s] 18 position[] and performance of [his] job duties,” Los Angeles Times Commc'ns, LLC v. Dep't of 19 Army, 442 F. Supp. 2d 880, 887 (C.D. Cal. 2006), but courts give reduced weight to a declarant’s 20 statement where the court has “serious[] doubt” that a person in the declarant’s position within the 21 defendant company would have sufficient knowledge of the matters to which he attested. Carol 22 Cable Co. v. Grand Auto, Inc., No. 87-CV-1036, 1987 WL 14544, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 23 1987). That serious doubt exists here.

24 None of the testifying witnesses provide declarations establishing personal knowledge of 25 their statements in Exhibit 1 or of the documents attached as Exhibits 3 (Mulcahey), 4 (Lamirand), 26 5 (Graham), 6 (Cleland), or 7 (Gilliam). While the Sutton Declaration claims that the documents 27 are “[REDACTED],” the documents themselves do not 28 reflect that. Dkt 332-3, Ex. 2 at 3. Exhibit 3 shows that it was generated by Dr. Mulcahey, but

1 this establishes nothing more than that she printed the document. See e.g. ECF 332-3, Ex. 3, 2 Attachments 9-14 at 140-254. There is no evidence or sworn declaration to establish that she 3 inputted the information or interacted with it beyond opening it to print. Other attachments in 4 Exhibit 3 do not reference Dr. Mulcahey at all. Dkt 332-3, Ex. 3, Attachments 2-8 at 87-137. In 5 Exhibit 4, most documents do not reference Lamirand at all. See e.g. ECF 332-3, Ex. 4, 6 Attachments 1-4 at 1-51. No evidence or sworn declaration has been submitted to establish that he 7 contributed to preparing, writing, or distributing the documents, save for one email sent from his 8 address. ECF 332-3, Ex. 4, Attachment 12 at 88. Exhibit 5 does not reference Graham beyond 9 listing her as a member of the HR team. ECF 332-3, Ex. 5 at 7. Many documents in Exhibit 6 do 10 not reference Cleland and are clearly written and signed by other individuals. See e.g. ECF 332-3, 11 Ex. 6, Attachment 2 at 99, Attachments 13-14 at 249-257, Attachment 18 at 402. Some 12 documents in Exhibit 6 even show that they were printed by other individuals, F. Assadi and 13 Monte Wilson. See e.g. ECF 332-3, Ex. 6, Attachment 1 at 12-13. Most documents in Exhibit 7
 14 do not reference Gilliam and state that they were approved of by other people. See e.g. ECF 332-15 3, Ex. 7, Attachment 1 at 1, Attachment 2 at 22.

16 Additionally, under Rule 603, “witnesses must give an oath or affirmation to testify 17 truthfully.” Fed. R. Evid. 603. “Any statement indicating that the deponent is impressed with the 18 duty to tell the truth and understands that he or she can be prosecuted for perjury for failure to do 19 so satisfies the requirement for an oath or affirmation.” Gordon v. State of Idaho, 778 F.2d 1397, 20 1400 (9th Cir. 1985). A written statement signed “under penalty of perjury satisfies the standard 21 for an oath or affirmation, as it is a signal that the declarant understands the legal significance of 22 the declarant's statements and the potential for punishment if the declarant lies.” United States v.
 23 Bueno-Vargas, 383 F.3d 1104, 1111 (9th Cir. 2004). While Defendants include a declaration from 24 counsel purporting to authenticate the record as business records that is not sufficient as 25 Defendants have failed to provide any declarations from the testifying witnesses themselves 26 establishing personal knowledge of the documents or with a statement that they are testifying 27 truthfully as to the documents contents and purported relevance. See Latman v. Burdette, 366 F.3d 28 774, 786-87 (9th Cir. 2004) (declining to admit business records on the basis of an attorney

1 declaration as the attorney had no personal knowledge as to the authenticity of the documents and 2 relied on third party information), abrogated on other grounds by Law v. Siegel, 571 U.S. 415 3 (2014).

4 Finally, many of the narratives in Exhibit 1, and documents attached in Exhibits 3-7 5 contain hearsay in violation of the Federal Rule of Evidence 802 which provides that “a 6 statement, other than one made by the declarant while testifying at the trial or hearing, offered in 7 evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted’ is not admissible absent an applicable 8 exception.” United States v. Sine, 493 F.3d 1021, 1035 (9th Cir. 2007). This is intended to 9 “preclude all parties from introducing unreliable, out-of-court statements for the truth of the matter 10 asserted.” Hemphill v. New York, 595 U.S. 140, 155 (2022). No exceptions to the hearsay rule 11 apply to Defendants’ Exhibits. In Graham’s section of Exhibit 1, she relays the explanations of 12 three different housing unit counselors. ECF 332-3, Ex. 1 at 30. Exhibit 3 contains emails written 13 by individuals other than Dr. Mulcahey. ECF 332-3, Ex. 3, Attachment 16 at 285. Exhibit 4 14 includes emails written by individuals other than Lamirand. ECF 332-3, Ex. 3, Attachment 12 at 15 87-89. Exhibit 6 contains requests written by inmates and responses and emails written and 16 signed by staff other than Cleland. See e.g. Dkt 332-3, Ex. 6, Attachment 2 at 99, Attachments 17 13-14 at 249-257, Attachment 18 at 402. Absent a showing that these documents meet an 18 applicable exception, which Defendants have not shown, they should be stricken or afforded little 19 weight.

20 To the extent the Court considers BOP’s evidence its objections should fail as they are 21 frequently unsupported by the evidence, unresponsive to the Special Master’s findings, are self-22 contradictory and unsupported. Attached to this brief, as Appendix A, is a chart walking through 23 each one of Defendants substantive objections and describing why those objections are invalid.

6 CONCLUSION

7 For the foregoing, reasons Defendants' objections to the Special Master's report should be 8 rejected and, in the alternative, can be addressed at the upcoming evidentiary hearings.
